

A40 Farina Club's downloadable and (almost*) fully text-searchable Spares Booklets

**a few entries are too pale for the recognition software to identify*

These three booklets contain a comprehensive overview of A40 spares and their sources, and represent a vast amount of research by Club member Paul Stapleton which culminated in their publication in 1998. The passing years have rendered the flanking booklets and their contact details suitable only as archive material but the central, red covered, Spares Guide contains many exploded views which originally appeared in the Austin, BMC & BL Workshop Manuals along with the relevant product Identifier Codes and may prove useful as reference when working on the car. There are still strict copyright restrictions for the illustrations in place from the original publishers and for the booklets themselves from the A40 Farina Club Ltd. These booklets can be downloaded only on the understanding that they must not be re-printed, distributed or sold and are solely for the personal use of whoever downloads them.

What is Find-a-Part?

Unipart Find-A-Part Service

by Clive Hawkins and assisted by Paul Stapleton

The Find-a-Part system was last run by Phil Thomas, over 10 years and more ago, and resulted in so many pages of goodies that he had to divide it up and have a theme each quarter, ie this quarter we cover Bright Metal Parts.

Microfiches

First, let me tell you how the system works and what is involved. I ordered the Find-a-Part microfiches from my local Rover dealer. These took nearly a month to arrive as they are only printed off to order (an indication of how little the system is used these days). They also cost £14.10. Paul & I had previously prepared a long list of part numbers to search for. (We call it List B for no better reason than that it was the second list prepared by us!). I then went to the local Public Library and took a crash course in operating microfiche readers.

I started down the list, noting down the availability (or otherwise) of each individual part. Back home, I entered the results into my trusty computer and sent the list to Paul. He added descriptions and Moss Europe availability and sent it back to me. I added this information to my existing list, and prepared the Dealer Address list.

Some figures will show the scale of the problem. List B contains 1,113 numbers. There are 3 microfiche films, containing 634 pages of information, amounting to approximately 150,000 lines of information.

Unidial

The other problem is that when Find-a-Part started, there were about 500 dealers taking part and therefore there was very good coverage of all available stock. However, most dealers are now on the Unidial system, which is a computerised Find-a-Part system. The result is that only about 50 dealers are still participating in the micro-fiche system and they tend to be the smaller dealers. This may not be as bad as you might first think as the larger dealers tend to purge their old stock to make way for new, whereas the smaller dealers tend to leave it on the shelf.

The disadvantage of Unidial is that it works the other way round. You enter the Part Number of the part you want and the computer tells you the nearest dealer who has it. If I were also to go into my local Rover dealer with List B and ask for a search of all part numbers (which is in fact what we really want to do), the storeman wouldn't be able to do it simply because it would take weeks to do. And, even if he could, you only get the nearest dealer and not ALL dealers so it would be useless as a club exercise.

If at first you don't succeed - forget it!

Provided you know the Part Number of the part you require, any member can go into any Rover dealer who runs the Unidial system (most of them) and ask for a search for that Part Number. The resultant success rate is likely to be low but you have to be determined to run an A40, don't you? And if the first dealer can't find the part, don't go to another one as they are all linked into the same system.

An explanation of my Find-a-Part list.

The Part Number and description should be self explanatory. The Dealer Reference links you to the Name and Telephone Number of dealers who have that part in stock. The full Dealer List is on the back cover

The column marked "Moss" indicates parts which are available (Y=Yes, N=No) from Moss Europe who are now the main supplier of A40 parts in terms of range at least. They also supply many other parts and the full list will be published by Paul in due course.

A word about suffixes. As an example, see 262703A. Some distributors are shown as (no A) and some as (with A). The parts are interchangeable and the 'A' appears to mean 'Amended'. Many gaskets have a suffix 'B'. This also appears to mean 'Amended' though what the 'B' stands for is a mystery. There are other letters which also mean 'Amended'. Some brake shoes have a suffix 'AF'. This is 'Asbestos Free'. 'E' means 'Exchange'.

I wish you all success in the never ending quest to find the parts to keep our gallant little cars on the road.

This Dealer List is, I'm afraid, significantly incomplete and out of date. In many cases it is not enough to add a "1" after the initial "0" as other extra digits are also required. And Leeds, Sheffield, Nottingham, Leicester and Bristol had completely new codes. Directory Enquiries may be able to help you or you could ring Unipart at Cowley on 01865 778966. Ask for Robert Dunsby on the Customer Help Desk but don't be surprised if you find that nobody has even heard of Find-a-Part. It is there but little known, even at Unipart. And I'm afraid that several firms have either closed down or become part of another group.
